High-quality academic publishing is built upon a rigorous, fair, and transparent peer-review process. Disease Biology, Genetics, and Socioecology (DBGS) has been able to uphold its scholarly standards and editorial integrity thanks to the invaluable contributions of our reviewers, who play a central role in the advancement of the journal.

Throughout 2025, our reviewers generously devoted their time, expertise, and critical insight to the evaluation of submitted manuscripts. Their thoughtful assessments and constructive recommendations have been instrumental not only in ensuring the scientific quality, accuracy, and originality of published articles, but also in helping authors refine and strengthen their work. Through this collaborative process, reviewers have directly contributed to enhancing the overall impact and credibility of the research disseminated by DBGS.

The commitment and professionalism demonstrated by our reviewers reflect the highest standards of the academic community and underscore the collective responsibility to promote robust, ethical, and meaningful research across the fields of disease biology, genetics, and socioecology.

On behalf of the editorial board and the publisher, we extend our sincere appreciation to all reviewers who supported DBGS in 2025. We are deeply grateful for their dedication and contributions, regardless of whether the manuscripts they reviewed were ultimately accepted for publication. Their efforts are essential to the continued growth and success of the journal, and we look forward to their ongoing engagement in the years ahead.
