How To Cite: JIIM Editorial Office. Acknowledgment to Reviewers. J. Inflamm. Infect. Med. 2025, 1(4), 4 <https://doi.org/10.53941/jiim.2025.100019>

As Journal of Inflammatory and Infectious Medicine (JIIM) continues to progress in its early development, we are pleased to report that the journal has successfully published four issues comprising 18 peer-reviewed articles. Each of these publications reflects the collaborative efforts of authors, editors, and—most critically—our dedicated reviewers.

High-quality peer review forms the foundation of academic publishing. At JIIM, reviewers have played a decisive role in ensuring that every manuscript accepted into publication meets rigorous standards of scientific integrity, methodological reliability, and clinical relevance. Their thoughtful and timely evaluations have strengthened the journal's content and contributed to shaping its academic identity at this formative stage.

We recognize that peer reviewing is a voluntary and often demanding scholarly activity, undertaken alongside research, teaching, and clinical responsibilities. The persistence, professionalism, and intellectual rigor demonstrated by our reviewers have been indispensable to the success of the journal's first year of publication. Without their contributions, the advancement reflected in our published issues would not have been possible.

On behalf of the Editorial Office and Editorial Board, we express our sincere gratitude to all reviewers who have supported JIIM. We look forward to continued collaboration as we work together to enhance the journal's academic influence and serve the global community studying inflammatory and infectious disease.
